

Heidi Keefe
Partner
Cooley LLP

Heidi Keefe is a first chair trial lawyer with two decades of experience representing some of the hottest tech companies in the world in complex patent litigation. A former astrophysicist and registered patent attorney, Heidi easily understands a variety of technical disciplines, from software to medical devices. Her clients include Facebook, HTC, King.com, LinkedIn, ServiceNow, SpaceX and Varian Medical Systems. Heidi develops close, trusted relationships with her clients by offering honest, smart advice about which cases to take to trial and which ones to resolve early on. Her goal is to protect core revenue-generating technologies and products so her clients can get back to business. Such guidance has earned her the longstanding trust of industry leaders. Beyond her prowess in the courtroom, Heidi is also actively involved in women's initiatives. She is a member of the Women Attorneys Advocacy Project, along with Judge Elizabeth Laporte, and is also heavily involved in Cooley's Women's Initiative. Heidi is a frequent lecturer on all aspects of IP protection. She has taught classes at Santa Clara University on IP litigation and has conducted lectures at Berkeley Law and Stanford Law School.